

VIRGINIA CROP STATISTICS AS SHOWN BY THE CENSUS

Washington, D. C., September 2.—Statistics relative to the leading crops for the State of Virginia, collected at the thirteenth decennial census, April 15, 1910, are contained in an official statement issued to-day by Census Director Durand. It is based on tabular summaries prepared under the direction of Dr. Le Grand Powers, chief statistician for agriculture in the Bureau of the Census. The figures are preliminary and subject to slight revision later, when a few other farms, whose returns, now incomplete, will be included in the final tables. It is not expected that these additions will materially modify the amounts or rates given in the present statement.

The leading crops of the State for 1909, ranked in the order of valuation were: Corn, $28,885,000; tobacco, $12,170,000; hay and forage, $10,265,000; wheat, $8,776,000; potatoes, $5,968,000; peanuts, $1,240,000; sweet potatoes and yams, $2,631,000, and oats, $1,610,000.

Decrease in Corn.
From 1909 to 1909, corn decreased 49,726 acres, or 2.6 per cent. Starting with 1,768,127 acres in 1870, corn fell by 1889 to 1,600,690, rose by 1899 to 1,910,085, and again fell by 1909 to 1,860,359. Hence, during the thirty-year period, corn has made but slight increase. The total yield in 1909 was 55,295,141 bushels; the average yield per acre, twenty-one bushels; the average value per acre, $15.55.

Slight Increase in Tobacco.
For the decade ending 1909 tobacco showed an increase of 1,275 acres, or 0.7 per cent. Starting with 109,951 acres in 1870, tobacco fell by 1899 to 110,573, rose to 184,334 by 1899, and again to 185,609 by 1909. The total yield in 1909 was 132,987,490 pounds; the average yield per acre, 117 pounds; the average value per acre, $66.60.

Increase in Hay and Forage.
Between 1899 and 1909 hay and forage showed an increase of 162,700 acres, or 26.5 per cent. From 336,289 acres in 1870, hay and forage increased to 604,857 in 1889, to 612,962 in 1899, and again to 775,663 in 1909. Hence, hay and forage has more than doubled during the last thirty years. The total yield in 1909 was 823,905 tons; the average yield per acre, 1.1 ton; the average value per acre, $12.25.

Wheat. In the decade from 1899 to 1909, decreased 334,359 acres, or 25.3 per cent. From 391,177 acres in 1870, wheat dropped to 737,516 by 1889, rose to 827,266 by 1899, and again dropped to 802,907 by 1909. The aggregate yield in 1909 was 8,006,989 bushels, of which 8,065,513 bushels was winter wheat. The average yield per acre was 12 bushels; the average value per acre, $12.70.

Potatoes Increase.
During the decade prior to 1909 potatoes increased 33,999 acres, or 70.1 per cent. From 1889 when 36,12 acres were harvested, potatoes in 1899 rose to 51,021, and in 1909 to 85,927. The aggregate yield in 1909 was 8,776,778 bushels; the average yield per acre, 101 bushels; the average value per acre, $55.20.

Increase in Peanuts.
For the decade ending 1909 peanuts showed an increase of 25,295 acres, or 24.2 per cent. From 58,962 acres in 1889 peanuts increased by 1899 to 115,914, and by 1909 to 145,213. Hence, during the last twenty years peanuts have increased nearly one and a half times. The aggregate yield in 1909 was 4,254,240 bushels; the average yield per acre, thirty bushels; the average value per acre, $29.20.

Slight Advance in Sweet Potatoes and Yams.
From 1899 to 1909 there was an increase in sweet potatoes and yams of 117 acres, or 0.4 per cent. Starting with 23,755 acres in 1870, sweet potatoes and yams rose to 28,185 in 1899, to 40,681 in 1909, and again to 40,833 in 1909.

Drop in Oats.
Oats during the ten-year period ending 1909 decreased 70,939 acres, or 25.8 per cent. From 56,443 acres in 1870, oats dropped to 495,508 in 1889, to 275,394 in 1899, and again to 204,456 in 1909. The total yield in 1909 was 2,881,495 bushels; the average yield per acre, fourteen bushels; the average value per acre, $7.90.

Corn Commercial.
The cereals had an aggregate acreage of 2,841,114 acres in 1909, as compared to 3,166,332 in 1899, a decrease of 325,218 acres, or 10.3 per cent. Wheat showed the largest decrease, constituting nearly three-fourths of the total decrease of the cereals. Among the cereals corn ranked first, not only in acreage, but also in value, comprising about seven-tenths of the total acreage and total value. In acreage and value wheat stood second, constituting nearly one-fourth of the total acreage and value of the cereals. Oats ranked third, having an acreage and value, respectively, less than one-third and one-fifth as great as wheat. The average value of cereals per acre was $11.10, slightly above that of hay and forage, and one-half in each respect of the entire crop. Corn showed the highest average value per acre; rye the lowest. Of the hay and forage crops, "timothy" and clover mixed ranked first in acreage and value, constituting nearly one-half in each respect of the entire hay and forage crop. "Timothy alone" ranked second, while "other tame or cultivated grasses" stood third. The total value of the hay and forage crop was equal to about one-fourth that of the combined cereals, and almost twice that of potatoes. There were a number of miscellaneous crops, and the most of them were well above the more usual crops in value per acre.

Merchants to be retailed out to home builders just as other articles of merchandise. The company does a large business along this line. The Buffalo Manufacturing Company are also extensive makers of ash, blinds, doors, posts, pillars and other building materials.

Among the older industries—in fact, with the exception of tobacco, the old industry of the Farmville Milling Company, of which Colonel W. M. Duval is the head. This old flouring mill, which has been kept new and up-to-date by the installation, whenever necessary to keep up with the times, of new machinery, has been famous for more than a half a century for its soft flour and meal. Its noted brands of flour are shipped all over this State and to many points of North Carolina.

The newest industry in the town is the F. H. Meade Manufacturing Company, makers of overalls, men's working clothes and shirts and automobile coats and suits, and they do say the Industrial Section brought it here.

This enterprise was a success from the very start, and is now shipping its products all over the country as fast as the up-to-date machinery and the fifty or sixty operatives can turn them out.

The capacity of the factory is to be enlarged this year, or early next year, in order to meet the growing demand for the superior goods it has in two short years gotten such a wide and favorable reputation on.

Another new industry that is also a success is the ice factory and cold storage plant, established and conducted by a company of which W. C. Newman is the president and general manager. Still another is a large nursery, just a mile out of town, which is being made to blossom forth by F. D. Green, a newcomer.

The Lithia Springs and Pickett's Springs are large shippers of water to the town. Good sums of money to the town. The American National Life Insurance Company has headquarters here, in charge of Martin J. Garland. There are several smaller industries in Farmville, among them the Prince Edward Cigar Company, and altogether they employ a large number of operatives, and do a weekly pay rolls put a great deal of money in circulation among the retail stores, and no town in the State enjoys a better farm supply trade, a semi-wholesale business.

The Farmville Herald, one of the best weekly papers in the State—the best, I may say, since it last year was awarded a $100 premium as such—a modern and model job printing establishment attached, which does a flourishing and profitable business.

Farmville's Banks.
Farmville has three strong banks—the Planters' Bank of Farmville, of which H. A. Stokes is president and Walker Scott is cashier, is the oldest, having been established in 1867. The capital stock is $50,000, and its surplus is $69,373. The deposits amount to $350,000, and loans and discounts to $360,000. The total assets of this bank, including stocks and bonds, cash on hand and its real estate and banking house, amount to $450,000. The bank does a big business with the rich farmers of the South and Virginia.

The People's National Bank is a much younger institution—in fact, the youngest of the three. Its paid up capital is $50,000, surplus over $60,000, circulation $50,000, and deposits $120,000. Loans and discounts foot up $135,000, and its United States bonds to secure circulation $50,000. Their assets run the total up to $205,000. George M. Robinson is the president of this bank, and J. L. Bug is the cashier, with J. W. Hubbard as assistant.

The First National Bank less than a year ago increased its capital stock from $75,000 to $100,000. Its surplus and undivided profits foot up $40,000, and its loans and discounts $375,000. Among the assets is $127,000 worth of United States bonds, and to guarantee circulation. The bank has so far loaned $75,000 in bank notes. N. B. Davidson is president and V. Valden is cashier of the First National.

Noted Seat of Learning.
The State Normal School of Farmville, which has grown from a small beginning to greatness in the town, has made Farmville well-known over the State and all over the country—so well-known, in fact, it is needless to write about it in a letter pertaining to commercial and industrial development. Last term the school had upon its list the names of 694 students in the normal department and 214 in the training school and kindergarten departments, making a total of 908.

I am told that for the coming term every room in the large school building has been engaged, as well as every room in every house in the town that will take student boarders, and it is expected that between 1,000 and 1,100 students will be in attendance during the twenty-eighth session, beginning September 18.

The famous Hampden-Sidney College, a Presbyterian institution of learning, well and most favorably known all over the country, is located in Prince Edward county, five miles from here, and this town may be said to be its seat. These two institutions, with as good a public school system and public school facilities as are usually allowed to exist under the shadow of such larger institutions, make Farmville an educational centre of which all the State may well be proud.

The town has five white churches, including a new German Lutheran Church, which has been recently organized, and three colored churches. The people are pre-eminently a church-going folk.

Good Roads Must Come.
The county of Prince Edward, strange to say, is a little backward in the matter of good roads building. It has done well, very well, especially that part of it near to Farmville, with the ordinary road fund at hand. Leading out of Farmville in three directions there are little over sixteen miles of good, permanent highways, some being macadam and the balance light soil and sand-clay blend. Other districts in the county are still badly in need of better roads. The county does not owe a dollar of debt, and has a good income. Why the people do not vote a big bond issue for good roads I do not know. No county in the State can better afford a bond issue or is better prepared to take care of one, and if there is a county in the State more in need of good roads, it is also in need of the earnest prayers of the whole congregation—several congregations, in fact. Prince Edward cannot afford to lag behind its sister counties in the matter of highway building. The people need to shake off their awful fear of a county debt. The best and most prosperous counties in this State are those that have got their debt good roads and other profitable improvements. Farmville, the county seat, is a town, a wide awake town, that all people are or should be proud of. Good roads ought to lead to Farmville from every part of the county.

Effective on and after September 1, 1911.

FARMVILLE TOWN IN PRINCE EDWARD

property in the town worth $25,000, consisting of a courthouse, fireproof clerk's office and a jail.

Ancient Tobacco Market.
From time immemorial Farmville has been a tobacco market, and with all of its conservatism it was among the first in Virginia to catch on to the modern way of selling tobacco.

Nearly all of the leaf marketed here is of the dark and brown shipping types, and some of the largest buyers of these types in the State are located here, and conduct big drying, ordering and pricing factories and storage houses.

The four warehouses sold last tobacco year, ending August 1, 8,500,000 pounds of the weed. All or nearly all of this tobacco, which is grown in the counties I have named, finds its way finally to the European markets.

But Farmville does not pin all of its faith on tobacco. There are other industries to keep many people employed and make the town rich and prosperous.

The Farmville Creamery Association, about the unique career of which I wrote at length some months ago, operates one of the few of the hurriedly established creameries in this State to succeed. It was built by the stockholders through the efforts of the farmers who sell the machinery and outfits for creameries after the injudicious manner so often exposed in the Industrial Section, and like most of them that were so established, it at first did no business because of the scarcity in this region of the raw material. But it so happened that among the duped stockholders in this creamery there were some men in whose lexicons the hateful word fall has never been printed—George M. Robertson, the president, F. H. Howard, the secretary and manager, and others. These men raised the money and bought first class cows in carload lots, and sold them on the installment payment plan to the farmers hereabouts, who had already been taught by Demonstrators Sandy and Gilliam how to make grass, and the creamery is now getting the raw material to make the butter, which is sold in the Virginia and other markets, and ice cream that supplies the local demand, and is shipped to nearby towns up and down the Norfolk and Western road. This plan, with Robeson to devise and finance, and Howard, one of the largest and most workers in the creamery business, to execute, was bound to succeed. It did succeed, and the Farmville Creamery Association is on "easy street."

That man Robeson is also the president of the Farmville Manufacturing Company, and the largest and most successful woodworking establishments in the State. The company, with a big plant, equipped with all the modern machinery, does an enormous business in the manufacture of plow handles, doors, sash, blinds, shingles and all manner of building material. This is the only establishment of its kind I ever knew to sell building material ready to put up a house to country merchants to be retailed out to home builders just as other
